Dear Parents,

Our Adaptive Beginner's Program is a unique offering in the driver training industry.

Teens with ADD, ADHD and/or other co-morbidities such as Autism, Asperger syndrome, Anxiety, OCD, etc. need to understand how these disorders may increase the driving risk for their child.

Studies indicate that these young people often find it difficult to sustain their attention and control their impulses resulting in high rates of traffic violations, accidents and collisions.

These teens are:

- more likely to have received repeated traffic citations, most notably for speeding
- sustain three times as many car crash injuries as teens without these diagnoses
- are less likely to be practicing sound driving habits in their current driving performances
- nearly four times more likely to have had a collision while they were the driver of a vehicle
- found to be at fault for car crashes four times more often than peers without these diagnoses
- six to eight times more likely to have their license suspended or revoked for poor driving behavior
- more likely to have driven an automobile without proper adult supervision prior to becoming a licensed driver

These startling statistics suddenly become personal when you have a teen with one or more of these diagnoses and the decision to move forward with driver training has been made.

We will not train anyone “just enough to pass a test.” The truth is there are more cars and trucks on the road that are moving at greater speeds than when we were kids. The roadways and our vehicles are faster and more complex. About 4,000 teens age 15-19 are killed in automobile collisions in the U.S every year. Training is a critical step in developing skills to navigate roadways. The education and training is an investment in your child and their safety behind the wheel.

Students with diagnoses need a great deal of specialized attention and nurturing to “explore” the possibility of driving. Participation in this program will need your full cooperation and patience as we work through the process as it is a process, not a series of training and test events.

Some things to consider before signing up for this program:

- Progress is totally unique to each individual
- Scheduling can be more difficult due to the need for specific instructors
- It WILL take more time to complete as it is paramount that we follow the behavior of the student. If for whatever reason, they plateau we need to ride the plateau out and revisit perhaps when the student gains more maturity and awareness. Be prepared for this to take up to 2, maybe 3 years
- Parental participation throughout is absolutely critical to the success of these students

DrivingMBA is an innovative and leading provider of science based education and training for novice drivers. We care deeply about our students and employees at DrivingMBA. Our expectations, standards and training are unparalleled in the Driver Training Industry. The partnership we form with members of student's support system (parents, guardians, grandparents, whoever plays a pivotal role in their life) is an essential component of our process.

If you have set deadlines for completion, or you do not have the time to actively participate in the process then we will not be able to accept your student into our program.

We ask you to take the time to consider this very carefully before you make this commitment. It is our intention to do what is in the best interest of your student. The student's support system must be engaged to be successful.
